Help the bat find the cave exit!

A mysterious and wonderful
world more than 65 m underground!

In the cave you can admire an array of stalactites and stalagmites in all shapes in sizes. Do you know the difference between the two?
A stalactite is an icicle-shaped formation that hangs down from the ceiling of a cave. Ground water drips through the ceiling and the drops deposit a thin ring of calcite.
A stalagmite is formed by the water drops falling from the tip of the stalactite. They grow from the cave floor upwards.
